In their anxiety to trip Jesus up and catch Him in error, the Scribes and the Pharisees posed many tricky questions. One day they asked Him, "Which is the first commandment of all?"

And Jesus answered:

"The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel; The Lord our God is one Lord; and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind and with all thy strength; this is the first commandment.

"And the second is like unto this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." (Mark XII:29-30)

And Jesus answered:

"The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel; The Lord our God is one Lord; and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind and with all thy strength; this is the first commandment.

"And the second is like unto this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." (Mark XII:29-30)

Love of God and love of neighbor-on this rock resides all of the power that faith can bestow.

Kerhonkson Area Pastor Accepts Call to Jersey

The pastor of the Federated Church of Kerhonkson and Leib-hardt Methodist Church, the Rev. Paul Babich has announced his resignation in order to accept the call of the First Reformed Church of Boonton, N. J. He and Mrs. Babich and two children, Ronald and Mark will be leaving the Kerhonkson area the end of this month in order to assume duties at the New Jersey church March 1. The board of the Kerhonkson church has slated a farewell dinner in honor of the pastor and his family 6:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Kerhonkson Firehall. The Rev. Mr. Babich came to the area on June 1, 1955. His resignation terminates a pastorate in Kehonkson of eight years and nine months. During his ministry here he received 233 members and administered the rite of baptism to 165 persons. The budget has been increased considerably to a present figure of $14,500. The Sunday school has increased to an enrollment of approximately 200 members in number.

Major improvements include the construction of a two-car garage for the parsonage, blacktopping of the church parking lot, planting of shrubs in the church yard, the addition of two Sunday school rooms, the furnishing of all the church school rooms with new furniture, and the purchase of a piano for the member, and in many other He brings to his work a broad areas of district responsibility.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN GEORGE WASHINGTON'S GREAT DREAM

You may never have heard of the Midland Canal proposition. But now that new substitutes for the obsolescent Panama Canal are being talked about, it should come more and more into the news. Since the paternity of the idea of building canal through the wall of the Alleghenies in West Virginia goes back to George Washington, this is a good day for the whole country to brush up on its possibilities.

Briefly, the proponents of a Midland Canal would like to see ocean-going ships moving from tidewater in George Washington's old State of Virginia to the Ohio River, with locks and a long tunnel serving to connect up the deepwater channels of various rivers. Some of the canal enthusiasts even dare propose an ocean-to ocean submarine-proof inland water route, making use at its western end of the Missouri and Columbia rivers. This would link the vision of Thomas Jefferson, who sent Lewis and Clark to the Pacific

TRUTH STIRRING ENOUGH

George Washington's birthday anniversary prompts a thought:

Why do we make up fables to illustrate impressive?

It is fine, of course, that Washington was fables to illustrate his honesty. Washington should be remembered for other, greater deeds; for his real accomplishments.

Washington did not attend school until Dinwiddie of Virginia wished to send a message to the French along the Ohio River valley and chose Washington to lead journey.

to lead an American army.

The army consisted of raw, untrained Their rifles were their own.

It was Washington's task to shape them into a fighting team. For seven years he fought not only the British, but apathy, defection and a wrangling Congress from 13 independent, sovereign, jealous states.

After the war, Washington was asked to preside over the convention which framed the Constitution. It was this same Constitution which provided for a president, and Washington was asked to be the first president of the United States.

Which of these deeds, should he be remembered for?

He was not a military genius. No one claims he was. There is some argument as to whether he was a great president. He was not even a polished surveyor.

What, then, should he be remembered

George Washington should be remembered as a man who so loved his country that he was willing to serve it in any way he could, a man who spent his life in the

'These Days'

You may never have heard of the Midland Canal proposition. But now that new substitutes for the obsolescent Panama Canal are being talked about, it should come more and more into the news. Since the paternity of the idea of building a canal through the wall of the Alleghenies in West Virginia goes back to George Washington, this is a good day for the whole country to brush up on its possibilities. Briefly, the proponents of a Midland Canal would like to see ocean-going ships moving from tidewater in George Washington's old State of Virginia to the Ohio River, with locks and a long tunnel serving to connect up the deepwater channels of various rivers. Some of the canal enthusiasts even dare propose an ocean-to ocean submarine-proof inland water route, making use at its western end of the Missouri and Columbia rivers. This would link the vision of Thomas Jefferson, who sent Lewis and Clark to the Pacific via the Missouri, with that of George Washington.

Is this all a mad dream? Well, so West Virginians point out, the St. Lawrence Seaway was once a mad dream. The dream, if it be such, began when General Washington, not yet President of the United States, proposed in 1784 to connect the James River in Virginia with the Kanawha River by utilizing dammed-up mountain creeks, locks and a snort tunnel near the crest of the Appalacnian divide. Lacking dynamite, bulldozers, power shovels, power drills and trucks, the canal company that Washington and his business associates formed never completed the job But the proposal had an unlooked-for political and social dividend, for Wasnington's attempts to get Delaware, Maryland and Virginia to help the canal along by abolishing interstate trade restrictions led to the Annapolis and Philadelphia conventions, which created the framework of the modern United States.

To make George Washington's dream feasible the greatness of our country's statesmen in this century, there would have to be a 96-milewhen their real lives are so much more long tunnel from Natural Bridge Station in Virgima to Deepwater, the head of navigation on the Kanawha River. The tunnel, at 572 feet above Why do we have to make so much out sea level, would have to be commodious enough to carry a 38-feet depth of water, which would of the legend that Washington told his be sufficient to float most ocean freighters. Morefather he had, indeed, cut down the cherry over, the James, the Kanawha and the Ohio River locks on the Ohio improved, If the dream could be pushed through all the way to the Pacific, a 135mile-long tunnel would have to be dug and blasted truthful. But it is a pity we must make up from Great Falls, Montana, to Flathead Lake. And there would have to be new locks and short canals along the Missouri and the Columbia rivers.

The Midland Canal enthusiasts talk about raising two billion dollars to construct the Appalachian end of the project. With Khrushchev's Born in Westmoreland County, Va., permission, the cost might be shaved a good bit by atomic blasting. This would provide crosscountry barge access to a point as far west as after he was 11 years old. Yet when he was Sioux City, Iowa, as far south as Texas, as far only 16 he started a career as a surveyor. Inorth as Minnesota, and to the northeastern United States via the Illinois River, the Chicago It was when he was a surveyor that Gov. Canal and the Great Lakes. Nobody has estimated, as yet, the cost of carrying the canal idea through to the Pacific.

Lest the whole business be thought of as a possible federal boondoggle, the Midland enthusiasts suggest a Midland Canal Authority, worka small group of men on the 1,000-mile ing under interstate campacts to raise money by Russia. selling tax free revenue bonds which would be retired ultimately out of tolls.

OF FLOWERS Q: The husband of a friend of ours died yesterday. Prior to his death he was in the hospital for two months. They are people of average means and I am sure his illness made an alarming dent in their savings. As a matter of fact, she mentioned the "staggering bills" to me once or twice. I would like to know if, instead of sending flowers to the funeral, it would be proper to send her a check instead to help defray some of the funeral ex-

A: This could be done only if she is an intimate friend and you can go to her say, "Mary, dear, was going to send flowers to the funeral but since there will undoubtedly be a great many floral pieces, I was wondering if perhaps you would rather have check from me instead."

One Wedding Present From Three Couples

We are three young maried couples who have been invited to the wedding and reception of a mutual friend. One of the couples suggested pooling our money and sending one very nice present. None of us have too much money and I think the idea of getting together and sending one worthwhile present is a good one but before going ahead we would like your opinion on this. Would it be a proper thing to do, or must each couple send a separate present?

A: It would be quite all right for all three couples to join together and buy one worthwhile present for the bride.

Introducing Stepson and Wife

Q: I married a widower several years ago. He has a grown married son and whenever I have to introduce him and his wife to friends of mine I never know what to say. Will you please tell me how they should be introduced?

A: You introduce them as 'John's (or my husband's) son and daughter-in-law.

Economy Ranch Dwelling Designed for Efficiency

Design changes just for the sake of being different seldom produce anything worth while in home planning, but when the deviation from traditional results in positive improvement, it is well justified.

A good example is this Lshaped, economy ranch dwelling called "The Vivian," fashioned for efficiency and looks throughout. The reversal here was the switching of the kitchen to the L-section and the living room to Actually it is not a drastic step in the light of today's trend to make homes more liveable. The virtues in this type of planning are readily apparent. Removal of the living room from the front to the rear give this focal point of family life a fine quality of quiet privacy, well removed from the path of normal traffic through the house.

The L-shape of the "Vivian" design is part of a pattern that seeks to provide positive separation of living, sleeping and working portions of the house.

One glance at the floor plan explains why. The front side entrance opens into a foyer from which you can progress to any of the three areas mentioned without so much as setting a foot in any of the others. A step to the left takes you into the kitchen, a few steps forward and you're in the living room, turn to the right and you enter a hall that leads to the bath and bedroom quarters.

Just as worthy of note is the economy window treatment which makes use of standard double-hung windows throughout except for the living room which features a large picture window on the rear wall.

The kitchen is well-lighted COLONIALS with a window over the sink RANCH HOUSES (No. 4A) which is sheltered by the covered porch. The two main bedrooms are of standard size and favored with large sliding door closets. The smaller bedroom will find use as a den or child's

Corwith Elected To Head Giant Farm Cooperative

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) -James C. Corwith of Water Mill Friday was elected chairman of the board of a giant farmer cooperative that is being formed by the merger of two groups with business in a combined total of 11 states.

Corwith's election came a day after the merger received final approval from members of the Cooperative Grange League Federation Inc. (GLF). Corwith has been GLF president.

Effective July 1

Members of Eastern States Farmers' Exchange Inc. voted Wednesday at Springfield, Mass. in favor of the merger, which creates what is described as the largest farm-supply cooperative in the nation.

The new group, tentatively in-corporated as GLF-ES, will take over the assets of both cooperatives July 1.

The board of directors of the two merging groups met jointly here today to elect Corwith and other officers of the new corporation.

Jonathan Davis of Sterling Junction, Mass., president of States, was elected president of the new organization and Edmund H. Fallon of Ithaca, GLF general manager, was chosen executive vice president and general manager.

Corwith Elected To Head Giant Farm Cooperative

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) James C. Corwith of Water Mill Friday was elected chairman of the board of a giant farmer cooperative that is being formed by the merger of two groups with business in a combined total of 11 states.

Corwith's election came a day after the merger received final approval from members of the Cooperative Grange League Federation Inc. (GLF). Corwith has been GLF president.

Effective July 1 Members of Eastern States

Farmers' Exchange Inc. voted Wednesday at Springfield, Mass. in favor of the merger, which creates what is described as the largest farm-supply cooperative in the nation.

Losers Manage Only 11 Baskets At Field House

By ED PALLADINO Freeman Sports Staff

Kingston scored the first two baskets of the game but managed to make only nine more the rest of the night and was trounced, 65-28, by Newburgh Free Academy in a DUSO league mismatch before more than 1,000 spectators last night at the Kate Walton Field House.

The pressurized victory clinche a tie for circuit honors for coach Joe Gaspard's happy Goldbacks. They can win the title outright by toppling Mon-ticello next Friday at the Hilly City gym.

Losers Manage Only 11 Baskets At Field House

By ED PALLADINO Freeman Sports Staff

Kingston scored the first two baskets of the game but managed to make only nine more the rest of the night and was trounced, 65-28, by Newburgh Free Academy in a DUSO league mismatch before more than 1,000 spectators last night at the Kate Walton Field House.

The pressurized victory clinche a tie for circuit honors for coach Joe Gaspard's happy Goldbacks. They can win the title outright by toppling Mon-ticello next Friday at the Hilly City gym.

The East and West hands are not shown today because they don't really affect the correct line of play. There is an automatic way that South should play the hand and, although anyone should see this automatic method, the actual South who happens to be a pretty good player did not see it. At the table, South won the trump lead with his ace. Then he cashed the king of trumps and led a low trump to dummy's jack. Each opponent had made two discards but they weren't helpful. All they showed South were low cards and no one bothered to signal strength in any suit. South worried a while, looked imploringly around and played dummy's four of spades. East played low and now South thought some more and finally played the jack of spades. West breathed a sigh of relief and won with the ace. South breathed a sigh of relief and lage.

Mrs. Kross Says Today is Saturday, Feb. 22, Off-Track Bets

NEW YORK (AP)-Anna M. Kross, City Corrections Commissioner, says legalized offtrack betting would reduce gambling cases in court.

Testifying Friday before special legislative committee, Mrs. Kross said the present New York State gambling laws were "absurd, hypocritical and sociologically unsound."

She urged the committee not to "let the voice of the people be cavalierly washed away" by failing to vote the bill out of committee. She referred to the 3-1 vote of New York City residents last year favoring offtrack betting proposals. An opposing view was expressed by Robert A. Glasser, chairman of the state harness racing commission.

Glasser said Mayor Robert F. Wagner's off-track betting committee gave no estimate of the cost of operating betting parlors. The state's race tracks now operate on only a small margin of prefit, Glasser said, adding: "It is easy to conceive that the off - track operation might yield little or no profit."
